

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

February 19, 2018

My fellow citizen:

I am excited to announce that, starting this week, I will be hosting an open forum in the East Wing of the White House every Wednesday night.

The White House, in conjunction with its internship program, will be bussing anyone who wishes an audience with me from the visitors spawn at Washington, D.C. to the White House.

Once at the East Wing gate, the Secret Service will search you and confiscate any firearms on hand before you are permitted to enter the building. Once inside, you will have the chance to spend a few minutes asking me questions, telling me your concerns, or communicating anything else you wish for me to know.

The White House is the people's house; it is my honor and privilege to announce this program to once again make that maxim a reality.
